Good King Duder Pumpkineers Volume

King Dude's overt sexuality makes a memorable return on blues ballad "Good & Bad," a bewitching duet with dark-folk siren Josephine Olivia. Scorched-earth baritone saxophone erupts from a murky atmosphere of brushes on drums and a sauntering bass line, calling to mind Howlin' Wolf or a chilling take on Small Change -era Tom Waits.

Those who have joined the incredible journey of King Dude, fronted by T.J. Cowgill, starting with the debut My Beloved Ghost in 2010, know and understand how the music of each album is different-- but not in an awkward way. "Music to Make War To" is perhaps King Dude's finest, if not most complete, offering to date.

Manhattan has long been renowned for the diversity of its offering of hotels--from some of the best in the world to some of the worst. Around 1880, the entire nature of the hotel experience began to change. Formerly, hotels had been just a place to stop between here and there for a hot meal and a warm bed. Suddenly, the hotel itself became the destination. New affluence, new technologies, and new fashion all came together in the decades between 1880 and 1920 to influence the demands of hotel guests, eventually changing the hotel themselves. This book gives a glimpse into the hotels of the super rich, the not-so-rich, the middle class, the Bohemians, and the workers. In a city as dynamic as New York, it should come as no surprise that so many hotels have a juicy tidbit or two of historical gossip attached to them. Manhattan Hotels: 1880-1920 may well be the most extensive work in print on the subject of the city's hotels in this period. Far from being a book for specialists, however, it is designed to bring Manhattan and its hotels of this era to life for all those who have been captivated by the electric excitement of the place.

These stories were written by Frank Weinman over the years 1959 to 2006. They include a memoir of his life compiled from a series of short stories he wrote. Other writings include his reflection on turning age 45, a Yom Kippur speech made in 1993, his account of the sentimental journey he made to his birthplace in 1996, and the family cruise that marked his 90th birthday in 2004.

Kelly Key is on the journey of her life. She is starting school. Are YOU ready to start school?

A Jamaican father and his adult son travel across the island together in a picaresque that explores family reconciliation.

Brooke was surprised at the letter from her sister. She won't return to England or go to college. She's completely head over heels for her homestay host, Jourdain Marchais. Brooke goes to Normandy to persuade her sister to come back and meets the man she has a one-sided love for. He's a prominent businessman living in an old castle, with striking black hair and gray eyes. He's also puzzled by her sister's feelings for him. He told Brooke, "If we pretend to be together, she'll give up and go home!"

Suzanne Farrell Smith's father was killed by a drunk driver when she was six, and a devastating fire nearly destroyed her house when she was eight. She remembers those two--and only those two--events from her first nearly twelve years of life. While her three older sisters hold on to rich and rewarding memories of their father, Smith recalls nothing of him. Her entire childhood was, seemingly, erased. In The Memory Sessions, Smith attempts to excavate lost childhood memories. She puts herself through multiple therapies and exercises, including psychotherapy, hypnotherapy, somatic experiencing, and acupuncture. She digs for clues in her mother's long-stored boxes. She creates--with objects, photographs, and captions--a physical timeline to compensate for the one that's missing in her memory. She travels to San Diego, where her family vacationed with her father right before he died. She researches, interviews, and meditates, all while facing down the two traumatic memories that defined her early life. The result is an experimental memoir that upends our understanding of the genre. Rather than recount a childhood, The Memory Sessions attempts to create one from research, archives, imagination, and the memories of others. Published by Bucknell University Press. Distributed worldwide by Rutgers University Press.

This fast-moving memoir of T. Moffatt Burriss shows his extraordinary role as a platoon leader and company commander with the 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment in Europe and North Africa during World War II. He saw a great deal of combat on Sicily, at Salerno, on Anzio Beach, in Holland during Operation Market Garden, and during the drive into Germany. This book portrays World War II as seen vividly through the eyes of the young American citizen-soldier.
